"Do not steal." In this Commandment God invites us to act as school children, to act as persons of values, always thinking only of what belongs to us according to the will of God, without taking what belongs to others.

ways

honor them both in view of the hardships they endured in their parenthood. Accordingly, using these Ten Commandments, I will be able to live a life nourished by values.

"Thou shalt not kill." By this God invites us to believe that the life of every human being is precious and that every human being is a creation of God. Therefore, I can apply this as a person of values by always cooperating with others in the love of God without destroying the life of human beings.

From the Commandment "Thou shall not lie," it always invites us to live a truthful life and always speak for the truth. By that as a person with values, I'll be able to be truthful every time by the help of the Ten Commandments.

By the Commandment "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods," God invites me to desire the riches God has given me, and to continue living according to the talents God has always given me. That way we can use the Ten Commandments to live a life of values.

Accordingly, when every family works together in the Church, every Christian family is actively involved in the Church, lovingly acknowledging the members of other families and assisting the priests in the work and liturgy of the Church.

When family members join together as a Christian family in daily prayer, the Christian family lovingly contributes to the work of the Holy Church. It can be considered as an opportunity to actively contribute in prayer.

In Christian families, we find opportunities for husbands and wives and children to resolve their problems based on the self-sacrificing love that Christ showed in their problems. In such cases, resolving their conflicts in the love of Christian families can be seen as an active engagement of the Christian family in the Holy Church bound by love.

Various religious ceremonies held by Christian families in the Holy Church focuses on the actions of mercy based on love. Helping the poor in particular can be mentioned here. In such cases, Christian families actively contribute to the Holy Church out of love.
